

Army Family Team Building

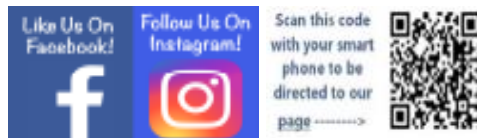

AFTB Program Information

Attendance at AFTB courses is open to eligible active duty, Army Reserve & National Guard and United States Army Reserve Family members, Soldiers, retirees, Department of the Army (DA) civilians, Appropriated Funded (APF) and Non-Appropriated Funded (NAF) employees, and contract program support personnel.

Benefits: The AFTB Program is a valuable asset in providing support to Army Families and enhancing unit readiness. The Chief of Staff of the Army (CSA) and the Sergeant Major of the Army (SMA) designated 16 December as "Army Family Team Building Day."

Volunteers are critical to the implementation, management, and evaluation of the AFTB program. To ensure a successful program, it will include at a minimum the following volunteer training elements (for example, orientation, goals and objectives, on-going professional development, and a written volunteer recognition plan)
